Jack Kemp gestures to emphasize a point during his speech at the 5th District Lincoln Day Dinner Saturday at the Lenhart Grand Ballroom.

Kemp speaks in BG at 5th District Lincoln Day event

Former candidate labels election as big conservative victory

By VINCE GUERRIERI
The BG News

Jack Kemp told an audience of about 800 people at the 5th District Lincoln Day Dinner at the Lenhart Grand Ballroom of the University Union that big government is the root of all evil.

Kemp, 1996 Republican vice presidential nominee, said the election, though won by Democrat Bill Clinton, was in many ways a conservative victory.

"The President didn't win without talking about the family," Kemp said. "He sounded like Ronnie Reagan at times. He won, and now he's got to live up to his rhetoric."

Kemp said Clinton's "bridge to the future" was in reality what French philosopher Alexis de Tocqueville referred to as the "mind-numbing velvet tyranny of bureaucracy," and that big federal government is not the key to solving problems, Kemp said.

"Government continues to be the problem," Kemp said. "It is seldom the solution. It spends too much. It taxes too much."

Kemp, a proponent of reducing the income tax and eliminating the capital gains tax, called for a revamping of the tax system which he said penalizes success, risk-taking and enterprise while subsidizing debt. Kemp called the current 2.4 percent economic growth rate "anemic."

He noted when he was playing football for the Buffalo Bills in the 1960s, he made $12,000, and paid between 4-5 percent in taxes. Now, Kemp said, the average family must pay nearly 30 percent of their income in taxes.

These taxes are then used to pay for social programs like welfare, which Kemp said needs to be reformed. He said welfare cannot be reformed without creating jobs.

The current job crisis, according to Kemp is not unemployment, but underemployment, where people have jobs, but jobs that do not pay enough. Kemp decried the fact that two parents have to work today to make the

Disappointing MAC loss leaves Falcons in NIT

By SCOTT BROWN
The BG News

The faces were grim as they sat around head coach Jim Larranaga's basement.

The Falcon men's basketball team knew that an NCAA bid was a long shot, having been upset by Eastern Michigan Friday in the Mid-American Conference Tournament semifinals.

But the team gathered in Larranaga's basement anyway to view Sunday evening's selection show, hopeful that the chips might fall in their direction.

They didn't. Bowling Green instead will get an NIT bid, the school's first since 1991. The Falcons visit West Virginia Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The Falcons remain without an NCAA Tournament bid since 1968.

"We all think we deserve to be in the tournament, but our opinions are irrelevant," said senior point guard Antonio Daniels.

Only one Mid-American Conference team earned a bid: Miami, the tournament cham-

Now the Falcons' focus turns to winning the NIT. A total of 32 teams are in the NIT.

BG would have to win three games -- all on the road, most likely -- before qualifying for the NIT's Final Four at Madison Square Garden in New York the last week in March.

"Once you start playing, you have something to play for," BG coach Jim Larranaga said. "If we cut down the nets in

Student killed in car accident

University sophomore missed by many

By DARLA WARNOCK
The BG News

A University student died Friday and another was injured after a car accident that occurred Thursday night.

Rick Machol, a sophomore sports management student, was a passenger in a car driven by Michael Brewster, a junior political science major. Machol was put in intensive care immediately after the accident and died the next day after a lengthy surgery. Brewster suffered only minor injuries.

Apparently, the two students were driving on the Ohio Turnpike through Pittsburgh, Penn., on their way to Machol's home in New York. After hitting a patch of ice on a bridge, their car spun, hitting a semi-truck on the passenger's side.

Machol's roommate, Paul, who preferred his last name not be used, said Brewster said the last thing he remembered seeing was the lights on the semi-truck.

Paul said he is trying not to think about the accident and the loss of his roommate, saying he still expects Machol to walk in the door.

Paul said Machol was very considerate and always willing to help.

Rick Machol

"He'd give you his right arm if you needed it," Paul said. "He was always there for you. That sounds so cliché, but that's the way he was. He was always there if you needed to talk."

Chris Stipes, a sophomore student who lived across the hall from Machol, said many residents in Rodgers are reluctant to talk about the accident and Machol, but things are starting to get back to normal.

Most students are just trying to keep the incident out of their mind, he said.

Stipes said Machol's friends visited his room this weekend, staring at pictures and remembering their friend. One friend wrote a message to Ma-

Kaptur focuses on women

Congresswoman speaks about lack of resources for female politicians

By MIKE WENDLING
The BG News

Rep. Marcy Kaptur spoke about women in federal office Friday to an audience of about 100 people in the Jerome Library Conference Room.

Kaptur was at the University to promote her new book, "Women of Congress: a 20th Century Odyssey."

"Every day of my life in Washington is spent in utter combat," said Kaptur. "When I come to speak to an audience like this, it's a real treat."

Kaptur went on to say that the battlefield of public office has been especially difficult for women.

"What I learned was that over 11,700 citizens have served in federal office and less than 200 of those have been women," Kaptur said. "And of those women, 42 have served longer than ten years."

Despite the obstacles facing women in Congress, Kaptur managed to gather together information from a multitude of sources about powerful women in Congress.

"I was shocked as I got into the material, because it truly was scattered ... so much of women's history is not recorded," she said.

Kaptur's book focuses on the stories of 15 female members of Congress.

"I tried to breathe life into these women," Kaptur said. "Not just to talk about which committees they served on or where they were born, but to get into their background. Support systems for women are much fewer [than those for men]."

Kaptur also talked about a recent bill she sponsored and about her experiences as a woman in a Congress that is nearly 90 per-

Magician to educate on the un-magic of drugs, alcohol

By GENELL PAVELICH
The BG News

Students will have the opportunity to be dazzled and amazed tonight as Bob Fellows, renowned educator and magician, will address the issue of how easily the mind can be manipulated.

His presentation, "Mind Over Manipulation," will include illusions, mind reading and mental tricks to show students how easily they can succumb to peer pressure and the media involving alcohol and drugs, as well as stressing the importance of leading a healthy lifestyle.

The presentation, which starts at 9 p.m. in 101 Olscamp, kicks off "Safe Spring Break Week" and the event is sponsored by the groups Boosting Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students (BACCHUS) and Greeks Advocating the Mature Management of Alcohol (GAMMA).

Fellows has lectured at the White House and has also appeared on various talk shows including "Donahue," "David Letterman" and "Leeza."

Michelle Brewer, BACCHUS adviser, said the event should be entertaining and she would encourage students to attend.

"Bob Fellows uses mind, magic, illusions and escape artistry to show students how easily the mind can be manipulated and influenced by peers," she said. "Usually pre-

Middle-class lie benefits powerful

In the past few years I have found time and again that the United States of America is not the pure land of individual freedom and social/economic equality (and what freedom there does exist is subject to many clauses). Therefore, what I hope to do is broadly expose some of the American fallacies, attempting to motivate you to critically analyze our culture and, in time, possibly positively change this country.

Today in the United States, 1 percent of the population owns and controls 40 percent of all American wealth—that is, businesses, property, communication, entertainment, stocks, etc. I have seen that figure over and over and it still strikes me as unbelievable. For this fact contradicts everything that we have been taught: That in our country, "we are free to do and accomplish anything we want."

If this is true, then how can so few people own (and therefore, control) so much? It would seem that only 1 percent of the people in the U.S. want to obtain economic wealth. What about the other 99 percent? What about the 15 percent of U.S. citizens who live below the poverty line? What about the one quarter of all American children under the age of six who live in poverty? Are they merely lazy and unwilling to work? I think NOT.

There is a chain which runs through American history, one of suppression of those without power. Whether it be gender power, land power, political power or race power, they are all in turn tied together by the ability to obtain and accumulate economic wealth, for without wealth in our country, one is powerless. To understand this, we must know how and why this country was formed.

Acclaimed economist Charles Beard warns that no government, not even the United States, is neutral; their actions represent the dominant economic interests and their constitutions are intended to represent those interests.

When creating the Constitution, "Founding Fathers" James Madison, John Jay and Alexander Hamilton argued (and won) that "representative government needs to maintain peace and control disputes that come from various and unequal distribution of property and control factional struggles of inequalities in wealth." (Emphasis added.)

Later, Hamilton wrote that the "new Union would be able to repress domestic faction," protecting the economic and power interests of the upper 3 percent of the population (at that time, the upper 3 percent controlled most of the property and wealth).

If we look at the current 1 percent statistic, it may help explain a bit more. If so few people own and control so much, then why don't the other 99 percent demand more?

The answer is one of the greatest accomplishments ever, with regard to maintaining power and suppressing social unrest: the creation of the middle class.

With the middle class, the upper 1 percent can control practically everything, and also prevent losing control due to social dissidence. This ability to control is obtained and maintained by having a comfortable middle, a buffer between the haves (the upper 1 percent) and the have-nots (the masses). With our comfortable automated suburban lives, we enable the elite to keep control with a minimum of coercion and a maximum of law.

Between the haves and the have-nots lies a cushy, supposedly free middle class. The prevailing attitude of this class is, "If we are given a slice of the pie (however small) then why should we complain?"

Because of this relatively apathetic comfort and unwillingness to question or change, the middle class allows the upper 1 percent to maintain control of our country and our lives, as well as subject millions of American citizens to conditions more often attributed to third world countries.

Maintaining the buffer of the middle is imperative because it keeps us (that is, the middle class, me and probably you) in a state of comfortable freedom which is controlled and granted, allowing those with power to keep the masses from questioning the role of our leaders and from objecting to the conditions of others.

With great ease, then, those with power in America hide behind the guise of middle class "freedom." But freedom to do what, freedom to challenge what? Freedom to buy a bigger TV, freedom to get cable and 64 channels, freedom to be a mere subject of marketability, in other words, freedom to be a consumer. What does that get us and those around us?

Are the 15 percent of Americans below the poverty line free to be the next Andrew Carnegie or Bill Gates? Are we all free to be "the little person who works their ass off until they achieve the American Dream?" No way.

For every Lee Iacocca on the top of the economic pyramid, there are millions of peasants who are merely used and built upon below. This country was founded on, and maintains itself through the "rags to riches/land of opportunity" MYTH.

The cruel reality, however, is that America is built on the desperate attempts and inevitable failures of millions of people trying to achieve the power status that only a small percentage can attain. We are limited by opportunities denied due to social and class status and almost never transcend those class boundaries.

Let me leave you with a quote and statistic symbolizing my discontent with how we are run, and how the powerful are privileged over the working classes. Dr. C. Evert Koop said the following when he resigned as U.S. Surgeon General, in obvious disagreement with President Bush's "war on (illegal) drugs": "Last year [1988], in the United States, 2,000 people died from cocaine. In the same year, cigarettes killed 390,000 people."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Poor coverage of BGSU minorities

My letter is in response to the lack of awareness The News has failed to provide for Black History Month. I have been a student here at BGSU for four years and have failed to understand why The News does not place "Did you know?" facts in its pages during the month of February.

The News' motto is "Serving the Bowling Green community for over 75 years," but I ask this: who does The News serve? Does The News serve all ethnic groups? Or just the majority? It's a shame the only time African-Americans are in The News is when it concerns sports or when celebrities have been butchered by the media (O.J. Simpson, for example).

Taking pictures of the Gospel Choir for Martin Luther King Day is not enough. How many times in its layout of campus pictures has The News placed a minority in the paper? The News contributes to the stereotypical images of African-Americans seen too much in today's media. The only time African-Americans are on the front page is when we shoot the most baskets, score the most touchdowns, or commit some act of crime.

Stop placing blacks on the front page when it relates to athletes or celebrities. Start mentioning black organizations on this campus who are really concerned about serving the community, as The News should be. Understand that The News is not showing equal representation of all ethnicities on a consistent basis.

Field House used by teams

We would like to respond to the misdirected complaint Chris Nickerson wrote in The News on Tuesday, March 4. He spoke of being kicked out of the Field House because of other soccer players and eight softball players. We understand that the Field House is funded by the students and the athletic department.

However, athletic teams have certain blocks of time reserved for Field House use. In essence, we (athletes) have priority when it comes to those certain times.

Now, "making the softball players play in the cages" is the most absurd thing I have ever heard. How would you expect a team to actually practice in the cages? The only constructive things we can do in there are hitting and pitching. What about the other aspect of the game called "fielding?"

Maybe he is not referring to the actual BGSU Softball team in his letter, but we would recommend specifying who exactly he is speaking about when writing a letter. Besides, the Field House staff should post when there are open times available to the student body outside of the sport teams blocks.

Web site spreads racist thought

Last Wednesday, I was walking to the Art Building when I noticed a bright orange sticker that had been placed over top of a flyer about the supposed "racial inequalities" in our fraternities. Now of course I was naturally interested in what this was, so I took a closer look. Upon my investigation, I noticed that this sticker had been placed there for "white people only" and was an ad for the National Alliance.

This ad promoted "preservation of" the white race. When I looked at it I thought, "Well, that's fair enough. Blacks can have their say about their race. Hispanics can, so this is acceptable." So, I took down the World Wide Web address and figured I would look into this "club."

What I found there completely disgusted me. An article entitled "Who Rules," spoke of Jewish people who own newspapers, TV stations, and other things, such as how our news broadcasters are passive towards events including other races and nations. Another page on their site was a link to their "German" counterparts site. One site was all about books you could get to support this.

Let me reiterate how I feel here. I am disappointed when I hear talk of racism by ANYONE.

The Web address, if you would like to look at it, is www.natvan.com. I welcome any comments at: nicold@bgnet.bgsu.edu.

If America is the "Melting Pot," why are we fighting over who belongs here and who doesn't? If it weren't for the explorers, this place we so dearly love would still belong to the Native Americans who had it first, but we can't keep looking back at history to fight over it, but to learn from it!

Melting Pot. What does that mean to you?

STATE

Flooding poses risk of erosion

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- The level of Lake Erie has risen nearly 2 feet above normal, posing an erosion risk to lakefront property.

"I am amazed at how high the lake is for this time of year," said Scudder Mackey of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources' Lake Erie Geology Group.

"I think we're going to see some real erosion problems in some places, and we may have extensive flooding in low-lying areas, especially the western part of the state."

Keith Raider, of Madison Township northeast of Cleveland, and others who live along the 262 miles of shoreline in Ohio are watching the lake. It has been elevated for years, Raider said. Since 1991, the lake has been at least a foot higher in February than the long-term average for that month of 570.8 feet above sea level.

"When I look out my window, I fear for my neighbors. They're going to be hurting," Raider said. "I got three (break-walls) out there protecting my property. We keep raising the barriers, but how high can we go?"

East of Cleveland, erosion problems are worse because of the composition of shoreline soil. Glaciers left sand and stone debris called glacial till, which is more easily eroded than the shale cliffs west of Cleveland.

Raider, a member of the International Great Lakes Coalition for Shoreline Preservation, said he feared the deeper waters will damage the shoreline, particularly near Painesville.

Inmates honor priest with celebratory Mass

The Associated Press

MANSFIELD -- Father David Foxen has been a Roman Catholic priest for 30 years, most of which have been spent shaping the lives of convicted criminals.

Foxen, 56, who has counseled prisoners at the Mansfield Correctional Institution and the former Ohio State Reformatory for 22 years, also is the deputy warden of special services at MCI. He is responsible for the prison's school, mental health program and religious, recovery and medical services.

On Saturday, he got something back from his flock of inmate-parishioners: They organized a celebratory Mass for him, an event that remained a surprise to the priest until the last minute.

The special occasion was attended by the Most Rev. James Hoffman, bishop of Toledo, and many other clergy.

"Just seeing men's lives as they grow has been the most satisfying aspect. And it's a struggle," Foxen said.

His job includes providing the sacraments, including hearing the confessions of the inmates and administering to death-row inmates.

"It can be a very discouraging environment because they certainly have a lot of troubles and pain to carry, but you also see some very heartening and uplifting things, and that's the counterbalance," he said.

After the Mass, Foxen said he was especially moved by the inmates' composition of the "Prayer of the Faithful."

"When they read that ... it was beautiful," the Chicago native said.

Foxen said his work at the Mansfield prison has been a calling from God.

Kemp spoke at the dinner at the request of Rep. Paul Gillmor. Gillmor said the event, which annually draws about 800 people, is the largest political gathering in Ohio.

One of those in attendance was state senator Bob Latta, who said Kemp could be the heir apparent to Ronald Reagan's title as "The Great Communicator."

"I think he laid it out for everyone where the future of the country lays," Latta said. "I think what he said was absolutely true."

Latta believed Kemp was a front runner for the Republican nomination for President in 2000.

Gillmor also liked Kemp's chances for the presidency, but guarded his optimism.

"I don't know of anyone at this stage to be more of a front runner than Kemp," Gillmor said. "But it's too early to tell."

"If you walk around the Capitol and look at the artwork, you would think that the only people who live in America are men ... when looking at the art, you start to say 'Hey, this doesn't look like where I come from. What's missing here?'" Kaptur said. "One of the bills I had was to make art in the Capitol more fully representative of American life."

Linda Dobb, dean of libraries and learning resources, was one of the principal organizers of the event.

"It was nice to have Rep. Kaptur here to talk about women's issues," Dobb said. "It's Women's History Month, we're getting ready to establish a women's center on this campus and this event was very timely." University President Sidney Ribeau introduced Kaptur and lauded her as an officeholder "dedicated to helping human beings."

Kaptur's visit was sponsored by the College Democrats, Jerome Library, the Political Science Department and the Women's Studies Program.

After her speech, Kaptur reflected moments when she is particularly aware of being a woman in the male-dominated Congress.

"When I speak before the whole Congress, I often look to the gallery, because it looks more like the nation than the floor of Congress does."

In addition to women's issues, Kaptur also commented on several other topics.

When asked about the plans for the Toledo Jeep plant, Kaptur noted that Chrysler officials had contacted her in Washington last Thursday.

"I expect news by April 30. I think there's going to be very good news for the people of Toledo."

When asked if she would pursue the Senate seat made vacant by Sen. John Glenn's retirement, Kaptur said that although she had not made a final decision, she was leaning toward staying in the House.

"I like what I'm doing now ... probably one of the most distasteful aspects of running is that you have to raise between 8 and 10 million dollars. That's quite a tough hurdle to mount."

sentations on this subject are more lecture-oriented, but this won't be boring."

Sara Schroeder, BACCHUS president, said Fellows is an interesting motivational speaker, and she said she hopes a lot of students attend to see what he has to say.

"Bob Fellows demonstrates the power of suggestion and talks about alternatives to drinking," she said.

Ann-Marie Gubbels, BACCHUS vice president, said she also hopes there is a big University turnout for this event because it is a very positive and educational presentation.

"Things in life can manipulate your mind, including peer pressure," she said. "Bob Fellows talks about this in his presentation, but he also uses props and interactions with the students."

Fellows involves his audience in discovering how their minds are manipulated, how this affects them, and how they can lose control of their lives by letting others make decisions for them.

Brewer said she hopes students learn from the presentation and think about what Fellows said when they are on spring break.

"I hope he can get the message across that alcohol and drugs can take over your mind," she said. "Students need to think twice about this before going on Spring Break."

Fellows, who has an undergraduate and master's degree from Harvard University, believes in the philosophy, "Say yes to making your own decisions." He travels about six months of the year doing programs like this at different colleges.

Around the Nation

Paratrooper may have been discharged

RALEIGH, N.C. -- A paratrooper "fixated on death" who shot 19 soldiers on his Army base would have been discharged before the shootings if officials had followed Army regulations, a newspaper reported Sunday.

Sgt. William Kreutzer Jr., sentenced to die for the Oct. 27, 1995, attack that killed an officer and wounded 18 other soldiers at Fort Bragg, was high-strung, depressed and obsessed with violence and killing before the shootings, The News & Observer of Raleigh reported.

The newspaper cited Army psychiatric records and court and investigative papers.

Kreutzer, who opened fire from a foxhole on 1,300 82nd Airborne Division troops at morning calisthenics, spoke persistently about killing almost from the time he joined the army in February 1992, the newspaper said.

After he joined the 82nd Airborne in 1993, one of his team leaders, Spc. Junior Estrada, said Kreutzer "seemed to be fixated on death and always seemed to speak about killing animals, people and just about anything."

He talked of stabbing a squadron of soldiers with his bayonet, running over hundreds of troops with a 2-ton truck wrapped in concertina wire and of assassinating generals, the newspaper said.

Kreutzer had asked for help with his emotional problems more than a year before the attack. "I feel a great deal of anger and hatred and I am preoccupied with violent feelings/thoughts," his application for psychiatric help stated.

OHIO VALLEY FLOOD

Churches still flooded with faith

Houses of worship begin cleaning up after wet disaster

The Associated Press

FALMOUTH, Ky. — Inside the Falmouth United Methodist Church, a solitary man shoveled out mud alongside a toppled wooden cross.

A few blocks away at the Falmouth Christian Church, red hymn books propped open windows so the soggy walls could dry.

Nearby, the Trinity Baptist Church was a muck-covered shambles, its organ and pulpit washed away and its pews in pieces.

In a town devastated by an act of God, flood victims still found a way to seek spiritual shelter Sunday. They gathered on high ground in the only spared church to give thanks that they survived, even if their homes didn't.

"We're going to get it back again. We're not going to give up," said Mary Hillenmeyer, 31, the fifth generation to work at her family's flooded funeral home.

At the Wesleyan Community Church on the edge of town, more than 100 worshippers attended the multidominational, "come as you are" service — some wearing borrowed suits and dresses, but many in jeans and muddy boots.

Holding their heads high in the face of disaster, the congregation sang "Count Your Blessings" and "God Will Take Care of You."

When last weekend's flooding of the Ohio River and its tributaries filled this town of 2,700 to its rooftops, most could only escape with the clothes on their backs.

With waters from the nearby Licking River receding, they trickled back in the last few days to see some of their houses tossed like toys, others badly warped and everywhere an ankle-deep goo. Four people were found drowned in their trailers and others are still missing.

In Lebanon Junction, where floodwaters from the Rolling Fork River had risen to the second story of some homes, a foot of water was still draining from the First Baptist Church. Its congregation gathered at a Methodist church a few blocks away.

"Not only do I not have my house, I don't have my church," said Vanessa Nicklies, wiping away tears. "But it's OK. The Lord won't give me anything I can't handle."

Deacon K.C. Fehl began the service with announcements that volunteers are still needed to clean out homes, "and I might add a church."

He led 80 worshippers in prayer. "Dear Lord, times like these make us realize how little we are and how much we need your help."

Though it may be tempting, the Rev. Thomas Hughes said: "Don't blame God. You work through the opportunities God gives. You can't let them cause bitterness."

More than a week has passed since the Flood of '97 began with a violent weather system that also brought deadly tornadoes to Arkansas and Mississippi. High water in West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee has increased the death toll to 58.

'River rats' make living choices

Ohio flood victims debate decision to return to drenched riverside homes

The Associated Press

RIPLEY, Ohio — They call themselves "river rats."

They are the people who live along the Ohio River, admiring its beauty and fearing its power. But why do they continue to live so close knowing its ability to devastate lives?

It's a question many outsiders have asked many times since last week's flood cut a path of destruction through 16 southern Ohio counties, killing five people and causing millions of dollars in damage to roads, bridges and homes.

Some stay because it is the only home they have ever known.

Others seek the river's soothing nature.

And some remain because they simply have no options.

"Sometimes it's not a choice," said 20-year-old Laura Workman. "We bought a trailer and we had to go where we could."

"You can't always pick where you live."

Low-lying land up and down the river is covered with house trailers and single-story homes. It's often the cheapest property available in counties with high unemployment and low incomes.

Ms. Richmond is one of hundreds left homeless by the flood. Sitting at a cafeteria table in the local high school — now a makeshift shelter — she vowed not to return to her riverside home.

"I want as far away from this river as I can get," she said.

Around the table with her last week were others whose dreams were swept away. A near-empty bottle of aspirin and donated microwave meals of chicken and noodles keep them going.

This was the second time within a year the water had reached Martha Russell's rural Brown County home. She's had an overnight bag packed since.

"All year long it's gorgeous," she said, explaining why she remained. "On a nice spring day, you kind of forget about the worst parts."

This time it was too much.

"Now I'm afraid to go back," she said. "What if the next time we can't get out?"

"My husband's devastated. He won't say anything. He won't even crack a smile."

Down the hallway of the high school, police Sgt. Don Spires

ADAMS COUNTY — U.S. 52 is closed at Manchester and state Route 247 south from U.S. 52 to the Wrightsville area. State Route 136 going into Manchester also is closed.

BROWN COUNTY — U.S. 221 is closed 1 1/2 miles past Higgins Port Road and U.S. 62 at the intersection of state Routes 32 and 125.

CLERMONT COUNTY — State Route 52 is closed from state route 749 to Brown County line and state Route 232 from state Route 52 to state Route 756.

HAMILTON COUNTY — The east exit ramp from state Route 125 to state Route 32 and the east exit ramp from state Route 32 to Route 125 are closed. Route 32 also is closed between Clough Pike and Turpin roads.

SCIOTO COUNTY — State Route 239 is closed at U.S. 52 as is the intersection of state Routes 73 and 104.

was busy helping coordinate the recovery effort. But he had other things to worry about — his trailer was one of the many under water.

"Six inches is all you can see," he said of his home, about a block away from where the river normally flows.

"My father owned the land," Spires said. "He lived there until he died."

But the sentimental ties only run so deep for the 58-year-old.

Falcons burn Lakers again with 1st round sweep

BG headed back to the Joe

By JIM TOCCO
The BG News

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. — The right Falcon team showed up this weekend.

The Bowling Green team that has enough talent to be one of college hockey's premier teams — and not the one that finished the season at a mediocre 15-15-5 — swept Lake Superior two games to nothing in the first round of the Central Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

The win means that the Falcons will advance to Joe Louis Arena Friday at 5 p.m. to play a semi-final match against Michigan, college hockey's best team.

With the weekend wins, BG completed a 5-0 season sweep of the Lakers, including four wins at Taffy Abel Arena, one of college hockey's hardest places to win.

In an unforgiving environment (with three feet of snow on the ground) and an unforgiving arena, the Falcons won by convincing scores of 5-3 and 8-4. And they did so by performing well in the third period — something they haven't done all season.

"I said it before and I'll say it now," said Laker head coach Scott Borek. "We got beat by a better team. They're just a better team than we are."

The senior class stepped up, as three Falcon seniors — Mike Johnson, Brett Punched and Curtis Fry — scored three goals each on the weekend (see related story).

Another senior started off game one with a bang four and a half minutes into the first period. Kelly Perrault put the first hole in the Lakers' hull with a blast from the right point. Assists on the power-play goal went to Punched and Johnson.

The Lakers retaliated four and a half minutes later, when Mitch Lane slipped a goal past Bob Petrie, with assists from line-mates Terry Marchant and Ben Keup. The same line combined for Lake State's other two goals on the evening. Both came in the second period.

The Falcons entered the third period trailing, 3-2. BG had never come back to win in the last 20 minutes all year, going 0-9 when trailing after two periods.

But this time would be different. Johnson pulled the team into a tie 9:26 into the final stanza with a slapshot over LSSU goalie John Grahame's glove side. Johnson also scored his third game-winning goal three and a half minutes later. Punched

EMU shocks Falcon men

With defense lacking, Bowling Green misses shot at tournament title

By SCOTT BROWN
The BG News

TOLEDO — Earl Boykins' dribbling around the perimeter was enough to lull Bowling Green's trademark suffocation defense to sleep Friday.

And as the defense slept, the NCAA Tournament turned out to be only a dream.

Eastern Michigan committed just 11 turnovers, a season low for a Falcon opponent, in a stunning 73-64 win over Bowling Green in the Mid-American Conference semifinals at Toledo's SeaGate Centre.

The Falcons, 22-9 overall, lost their chance at a tournament title and automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament. Instead, BG plays West Virginia in a first-round NIT game Wednesday.

The Eagles went on to lose Saturday's championship game to Miami and wound up with an NIT bid themselves.

BG has lived and died with its defense this season, and Friday the Falcons died by it. EMU shot just 41 percent for the game, but BG could muster only six steals and was never able to sustain any kind of transition game.

The Falcons never had the lead during the entire ballgame. The Eagles went up 68-64 when Mike Pennisi got behind the Falcon press with 1:41 to go. BG's next five possessions produced four errant shots and a turnover.

The ball handling of Eagle point guard Earl Boykins proved to be the difference.

"For us to win the ballgame, it was going to need to be a high-scoring affair," BG coach Jim Larranaga said. "[EMU] is able to do certain things against our defense that only certain teams can do. That is to leave the ball in one player's hands and let him dribble around until they get the shot they are looking for.

"We rely very heavily on forcing turnovers because they create opportunities for fast break baskets. When we don't get fast break baskets we have to rely on a half-court game. We're a lot easier to defend in those circumstances."

Antonio Daniels led the Falcons with 20 points on 8-of-11 shooting. Anthony Stacey and Tony Reid each had 14 points, but no other Falcon made a sizeable contribution.

Jay Larranaga, a focal point of EMU's defensive scheme (see related story) was just 1-for-7 from the floor with two points. DeMar Moore, the MAC's Defensive Player of the Year, had only three points and went without a steal.

Derrick Dial (16 points) led EMU. Boykins, despite a 5-for-20 shooting performance, had 14 points, six assists and only two turnovers.

"A very tough-minded team beat a very good team today," EMU coach Milton Barnes said. "Bowling Green is our league champion and they played like it, but I think we showed what we are made of."

The teams were tied at half-time, but the Eagles took control in the second half by pounding the glass. Torrey Mills (14 points, eight rebounds) went hard and had two rebound baskets in the first four minutes of the half.

"You have to give credit to Eastern. They played a good game," Stacey said. "We kept making runs at them and they kept stopping it."

The Eagles led by as many as eight points in the half. The Falcons had several opportunities to pull even or take the lead, but each time the Eagles would come up with a key bucket or BG would misfire on offense.

A play indicative of the Falcons' day came late when Daniels found Stacey wide open underneath the basket. Daniels' bullet Antonio Daniels is stymied on a drive to the basket by Eastern Michigan's Jon Zajac (left) and Earl Boykins (11). Daniels had 20 points in the Falcons' 73-64 loss to Eastern Michigan. BG, kept out of the NCAA Tournament, plays in the NIT this week.

Eagle defense stuffs Larranaga

By JASON McMAHON
The BG News

TOLEDO — Milton Barnes may be crazy, but he's not stupid. The Eastern Michigan coach proved that Friday.

"You may think I'm crazy, but we really had to do a good job on Jay Larranaga," Barnes said. "We had to. We just could not allow Jay Larranaga to have a good game."

Mission accomplished.

Barnes' Eagles shut down Larranaga, taking the senior forward out of the game and effectively sending the Falcons to the NIT rather than the NCAA Tournament.

Larranaga's scoring was limited to one lonely fade-away jumper midway through the first half. He shot 1-of-7 from the field and missed all four of his three-point attempts in 34 minutes of action.

Much of the responsibility for guarding Larranaga was given to Eastern's Torrey Mills, who finished with 14 points. Mills pestered Larranaga all night long, as the Eagles presented a tight man-to-man defense.

"Jay's going to get his shots like all good players do," Mills explained. "Basically, I just wanted to make him put it on the floor. I didn't want to give him no open looks. My teammates helped out pretty good, and he didn't shoot too good."

Neither did Falcon guard DeMar Moore. Bowling Green's other sharpshooter missed five of his six shots from the field, including three of his four tries from beyond the arc. The Falcons' single-season record holder in steals also could not come up with a single theft.

Bowling Green coach Jim Larranaga said that he had a feeling the Eagles might focus on Lar-

Miami claims MAC title

Davis takes show back to NCAA

By SCOTT BROWN
The BG News

TOLEDO -- Devin Davis and his dreadlocks and Charlie Coles and his quips are back in the NCAA Tournament.

Davis had 16 points and 13 rebounds Saturday as Miami slammed Eastern Michigan, 96-76, in the championship game of the Mid-American Conference Tournament.

The Redskins (21-8) received a No. 12 seed in the Midwest Regional and will take on ACC foe Clemson Thursday at Kemper Arena in Kansas City.

Miami was last in the NCAA in 1995 when Davis, then a phenomenal sophomore center, led the Redskins to an upset of nationally-ranked Arizona in the NCAA first round in Dayton. The Redskins went on to lose to Virginia in overtime in the second round.

Coles, the rookie coach at Miami who was also head coach at Toledo Central Catholic a few years ago, last went to the NCAA Tournament in 1987 when he was head coach at Central Michigan.

Coles is the first coach in history to lead two MAC teams to the NCAA Tournament -- and he was visibly happy about it after the game.

"What do James Brown and the Miami basketball team have in common?" he asked a crowded room of reporters.

"We feel good."

The Redskins, with Davis leading the way, made Eastern Michigan feel anything but good. Miami raced out to a 47-33 half-time lead and never looked back.

In addition to Davis' double-double, Ira Newble had 27 points and Wally Szczerbiak had 26. With those three combining to shoot 30-of-39, the Redskins were an impressive 40-of-59 (67.8 percent) from the floor.

"We are a lot more focused and taking better shots," Davis said.

Derrick Dial had 31 points to lead Eastern Michigan, but no other Eagle had more than 11.

"Our guys gave it their all, but the better team won today," EMU coach Milton Barnes said.

The Eagles struggled with anemic shooting, as opposed to Miami's blitzkrieg. EMU was just 30-of-72 from the floor (41.7 percent), including just 35 percent in the first half.

Boykins shot just 4-of-15 from the floor, making him 9-of-45 (20 percent) for the tournament.

Miami had advanced to the championship game after rolling over Western Michigan, 84-67 in Friday's semifinals. Davis had 24 points and 15 rebounds in that contest.

Rockets win MAC, head to NCAA

Four-man firing squad leads UT to third straight tournament title

By JASON McMAHON
The BG News

TOLEDO -- In a game reminiscent of Toledo's semifinal victory over Bowling Green, the Rockets steamrolled Kent with a suffocating defensive effort, 88-64, to win their third straight Mid-American Conference Tournament championship Friday night before 4,694 fans at the SeaGate Centre.

"I thought tonight we put it all together," Ehlen said. "We just had all pistons firing."

With the victory, the Rockets cement their position in the NCAA Tournament by grabbing the MAC's automatic berth. They drew the tenth seed in the Midwest bracket, and will tackle Stephen F. Austin in a first round tilt Friday night in Boulder, Colorado.

Kent coach Bob Lindsay was resigned to the prospect of watching the NCAA's from afar. When asked if his team had a shot, he answered quickly in the negative.

"No," Lindsay said. "I'm afraid it's gonna be one and done for the conference this year."

The game started out as target practice from long range. Toledo's tournament MVP Mimi Olson opened the scoring with a long-range bomb, which was immediately answered by a trey from Kent's B.J. Smith-Goldman.

Kent's MAC Freshman of the Year Dawn Zerman hit a 3-pointer of her own to give Kent their only lead of the game at 6-5. Smith-Goldman would drain another to knot the score at nine. Then Olson went thermal.

The senior forward led Toledo on a 9-0 run, sparking the spurt with a 3-pointer and punctuating it by launching a trey from beyond the NBA 3-point arc. Kent would not get closer than six points the rest of the way.

Olson scored a game-high 27 points, including outscoring the Flashes 16-13 over the first 10:30 of the game. Along with sophomore sensation Kim Knuth (19 points, 8 assists), she hurt Kent with outside jumpers and drives to the basket. But Lindsay felt the difference came in the paint.

"If there was any area where I felt we had a deficiency, it was more on the inside," Lindsay said.

That was where seniors Angela Drake and Kim D'Angelo went to work. Drake, the MAC Player of the Year, scored 18 points and grabbed a game-high 10 rebounds, while D'Angelo added 11 points.

Smith-Goldman scored 18 points to pace Kent. She joined Drake, Olson, D'Angelo, and Knuth on the All-Tournament team.

New York, there won't be anybody who will be disappointed that we didn't get in the NCAA."

The Falcons lost their only previous meeting with West Virginia, 85-78 during the 1976-77 season.

The Mountaineers, who many thought deserved an NCAA bid themselves, finished 19-9 overall and 11-7 in the Big East. Among common opponents with BG, West Virginia defeated Ohio earlier this year by 15 in Morgantown.

The last time the Falcons went to the NIT, they dropped a first round game at Cincinnati.

"I felt better then because I knew the NCAA wasn't really a consideration," Larranaga said. "I felt we really deserved a bid."

"But we are glad for the opportunity to keep playing. The bottom line is, we don't want to have finished our season playing like we did last Friday. That wasn't us."

Daniels agreed.

"We weren't ourselves," he said. "But the postseason is a new season."

MAC TOURNAMENT

Daniels named to all-tournament team

TOLEDO — Antonio Daniels might have made an early exit from the MAC tournament, but he wasn't forgotten come time to select the all-tournament team.

Daniels joined Miami's Devin Davis, Ira Newble, Wally Szczerbiak, and Eastern Michigan's Derrick Dial on the squad. Davis was named the tournament MVP.

Davis had 40 points and 28 rebounds over the two games. His teammates on the all-tournament team were equally impressive over the course of the weekend. Newble had 39 points and 10 rebounds while shooting a sizzling 17-of-22 from the floor. Szczerbiak had 43 points and was 17-of-23 from the floor, 5-of-8 on 3-pointers.

Dial had 47 points in the two games to lead the Eagles.

Daniels had 20 points in Friday's semifinal loss to Eastern Michigan along with six assists.

Toledo puts four on women's team

Four Rocket players made the all-tournament team after Toledo pulverized Kent, 88-64 in the women's championship game Friday night.

Mimi Olson was named the tournament MVP with 45 total points as the Rockets rolled over Bowling Green and Kent to win their third consecutive MAC Tournament championship.

Angela Drake (26 points, 15 rebounds), Kim Knuth (37 points, 11 assists) and Kim D'Angelo (21 points, 11 rebounds) were also on the team. Kent's B.J. Smith-Goldman (48 points, six 3-pointers) rounded out the five-player squad.

Barnes, Coles have spirited confrontation in final

The coaching matchup in the men's championship game pitted two old friends in Eastern Michigan's Milton Barnes and Miami's Charlie Coles.

When Barnes played high school basketball in his native Saginaw, Mich., Coles was his head coach.

"If I had to lose to somebody ...," Barnes said after the game.

The two appeared to be joking back and forth at times during the game, including a spirited exchange halfway through the second half.

"That was when the temperature was rising in the gym," Coles said with a big grin.

pass, however, went right out-of-bounds past a mystified Stacey.

"They made the big plays when they needed to," Daniels said. "Our transition game wasn't going like it usually goes. I blame myself for that."

"I think we all know we could have won this game, but we didn't do what we needed to do to win it. Saying it and executing it are two different things."

Larranaga tried to make his case following the game, going on a five-minute tirade about how the MAC -- and his team -- deserves more respect.

"Do we deserve two teams?"

Yes," he said.

The pleas fell on deaf ears.

ranaga and Moore and slack off of Mid-American Conference Player of the Year Antonio Daniels.

"I told our guys at halftime -- in fact I sensed it even before the game -- that they needed to do one of two things defensively," coach Larranaga said. "They needed to either concentrate so much on Antonio and hope that Jay and DeMar did not have good shooting games, or concentrate really hard on DeMar and Jay so that we wouldn't run 3-pointers on them."

The stat sheet showed that the Eagles' plan worked. The trio of Larranaga, Moore and Tony Reid combined for 2-of-14 shooting from three-point range, while Daniels was held to 20 points.

Daniels made all eight of his shots from inside the arc, but was 0-of-3 from outside. He tried to shoulder the post-game blame for the Falcons' loss.

"I'm the point guard -- I'm supposed to engineer the offense," Daniels said. "Everybody's supposed to feed off me and it's my job to get everybody involved. I don't think I did that today."

"It's just like we were kind of off of each other today. Maybe I hit Jay wrong when his steps weren't down or he wasn't ready to shoot or hit DeMar when he wasn't ready to shoot. Being the point guard and the captain of this team, I take the blame for that."

SWIMMING

Competition too tough for BG

Johnson wins gold, Stoltz breaks two records as Falcons finish sixth in MAC

By MIKE LEONARD
The BG News

The Bowling Green State University men's swim team finished sixth at the Mid-American Conference Championship meet this past weekend.

An off day on the third day of competition limited BG to 248 points, relegating the Falcons to sixth in the MAC for the fifth consecutive year.

The story of the meet, however, occurred at the top of standings. Eastern Michigan had won the MAC men's swimming title for 17 consecutive years, the longest string of consecutive championships in MAC intervarsity competition.

That string ended on Saturday, however, as the Miami Redskins defeated the Eagles by 6.5 points, claiming the championship at their home pool.

For the Falcons, head coach Randy Julian was lukewarm about his team's performance.

"We had some great swims. We had some disappointing swims," Julian said. "We needed more great swims because, at this meet, the MAC took it to another level."

Julian said that the relays for the Falcons did an excellent job, as all of the Falcon relays came close to school records. In the 200-yard freestyle relay, Ethan Dugan's opening leg time of 21.35 seconds was less than .4 seconds off Rich Foster's school record.

The Falcons lone individual championship came from an unexpected source. Freshman Matt Johnson, who was seeded 16th coming into the meet, won the 100-yard breaststroke with a time of 56.34. The victory was a shock to all at the meet, including Johnson himself.

"I was very excited," Johnson said. "It was kind of unexpected. I felt really good coming into this weekend but I didn't expect to drop that much time."

Johnson said that despite his surprise, he now has a plan for the remainder of his career at BG.

"I'm going to make it my goal to win it [the 100-yard breaststroke] all four years," Johnson said.

Junior Tom Stoltz also had a good meet. Stoltz finished third in 500-yard freestyle with a time of 4:29.06, breaking his own school record. Stoltz's time of 1:39.7 broke Rich Foster's school record in the 200-yard freestyle. Stoltz broke the record in the preliminary swims before finishing fourth in the finals.

Senior Brandon Farris did not have as good a meet. Farris, swimming in his final meet, was relegated to the consolation finals in the 200-yard backstroke, 200-yard butterfly and 400-yard individual medley.

Julian placed the blame for Farris' performance on himself.

"My gut reaction is that Brandon needed a little more work in practice," Julian said. "For a coach, to overrest a swimmer is the ultimate sin."

The season is over for the Falcons except for diver Jeff Allen. Allen will be diving next week at the NCAA Regional Championship Meet in an attempt to qualify for NCAA Championships later this month.

Falcons tie record vs. Broncos in final home meet

By WILLIAM SANDERSON
The BG News

It was a great evening for the Falcon gymnastics team last Friday. It was Senior and Parents' Night, the senior gymnasts were honored, Freddie Falcon showed up, and, oh yeah, Bowling Green won.

In the team's final home meet of the season, Bowling Green beat Western Michigan 190.625-190.175. This gives the Falcons their first MAC win of the season, and boosts their dual meet record to 2-4. Counting tournament competition, they are 4-9.

Bowling Green's total score of 190.625 equalled the team's record for total points that they had originally set on Feb. 8 at the Captain Crunch Invitational. "This is where we are, and this is what we should be doing," Bowling Green head coach Dan Connelly said. "It was really close. We won by .5, but it felt like it was a lot closer than that." The meet was a classic nail-biter. Although Western trailed throughout the meet, they were only down by .325 going into the final event. While the Broncos had a solid performance on the balance beam, Bowling Green performed strong floor exercises.

It was an emotional night for three of the Falcon's senior gymnasts. Kim Pope, Andrea Seaman and Susan Talbott all performed in their final home meet for Bowling Green.

"It's sad, but it's exciting," said Pope. "This is just their first stepping stone to actually winning the MAC. I ended on a good note and that made me happy. We all won and came together, and that is what's important." The Falcons' final two performers, Kim Pope and Erin Klingenberg, both nailed their routines to ensure a Falcon victory. After Pope, a senior co-captain, scored a 9.700, Klingenberg scored a 9.750 to win the event.

Jackie Haft was another Falcon winner. Her score of 9.750 was the best for the vault. Christina Treiber won the uneven bars with a score of 9.575.

The only win for the Broncos came on the balance beam. Becky Swelnis had a 9.800. The closest Falcon finishers were Treiber and Melissa Hunt, who tied for third.

Although the Falcons failed to come away with a win in the beam, Connelly was particularly

Men's tennis loses at Cincinnati

When Bowling Green men's tennis coach Jay Harris returned to his alma mater Friday, home wasn't as sweet as he had remembered.

The Falcons (3-5) were turned back by the University of Cincinnati 4-3 Friday night at the Queen City Racquet Club.

Sophomores Radu Batran and Matt Wiles won singles matches in the No. 3 and No. 4 flights, while junior Ryan Gabel was victorious at No. 5 singles.

The Falcons return home Friday to take on Xavier at the Findlay YMCA. Action is slated for 4 p.m.

pleased with this event.

"Obviously the highlight of the meet was the six for six on the balance beam," Connelly said. "If you can do that, you're going to be in there."

Bronco head coach Brigitte Laketa was pleased with her team's performance.

"They did very well. I was happy that we broke 190," Laketa said. "We hit beam, which was really good for us. We are an injured team right now, and they put all their hearts and souls into their gymnastics and did a very good job."

No Falcon competed in the all-around. Swelnis won the all-around with a total score of 38.475, beating two other Western gymnasts.

"The most impressive thing about tonight's performance is that we actually tied our record, but we did it without Heather Ferguson in the lineup," Connelly said. "That's a real tribute to the kids that have stepped up and taken over."

Bowling Green will finish their season at Central Michigan. They will have a dual meet with the Chippewas next Saturday, and then will compete in the MAC Championships on March 22.

to tiebreakers in their respective matches.

After losing 4-6 in the first set, Mikolajewski came back to take the second set, 6-0, against Spray. Spray won the tiebreaker, 7-2, and the match, 6-4, 0-6, 7-6 (7-2). A person can't get much closer than a tiebreaker in the third set, Dean mentioned.

Weisblatt won her tiebreaker, 7-2, over Trocewicz. This was the first time this year - but not the first time in her career - that Weisblatt has been faced with a tiebreaker.

"I just stayed mentally tough,"

Weisblatt said. "We were both pretty even. It was a battle of the groundstrokes."

As a reward for the victory, Dean is giving her team the week off.

UNFORTUNATELY, THIS IS WHERE PEOPLE ARE PUTTING TOO MANY RETIREMENT DOLLARS.

Every year, a lot of people make a huge mistake on their taxes. They wind up sending Uncle Sam money they could be saving for retirement.

Fortunately, that's a mistake you can avoid with SRAs—tax-deferred annuities from TIAA-CREF. SRAs not only ease your current tax bite, they offer an easy way to build retirement income—especially for the "extras" that your pension and Social Security benefits may not cover. Because your contributions are made in before-tax dollars, you pay less in taxes now. And since earnings on your SRAs are tax deferred, your money works even harder for you.

What else do SRAs offer? The investment choice, flexibility, and expertise of TIAA-CREF—America's foremost retirement organization.

Why write off the chance for a more rewarding retirement? Stop by your benefits office or call us at 1 800 842-2888 and find out how TIAA-CREF SRAs can help you enjoy many happy returns.
